The Power and Importance of Books and Reading

Books have the power to benefit all age groups of children. Who can forget the movie “The Blind Side” as Sandra Bullock was reading to her own children while Michael was listening from the hall. Reading is one of the most important things parents can do to prepare a child to succeed in school. Here are some benefits that come from reading to your child.

Creating a desire to learn. One of the main benefits of reading to children is helping them develop a desire to learn. Learning to put together words and sentences can prepare them to master the math, science, and other concepts presented in elementary school.

Learning basic speech and language skills. As they listen to you read, little ones are processing the basic sounds that form language. When a toddler pages through a book and “pretends” to read it, they are laying the foundation for reading. This will help them begin to master language fundamentals as they prepare to enter school.

Seeing how books “work.” As you read, children will learn that text is read from left to right. They will see that the words on a page are separate from the pictures. This is important once they begin to read for themselves.

Improving communication skills. Children who are read to learn how to express themselves. As they listen to you read and see how characters in the books interact with each other, your child will gain valuable communication skills.

Building thinking skills. As they are read to, your toddler or preschooler will begin to relate the scenarios in books to what’s happening in their own life.

Preparing for new experiences. Reading a story is a great way to help prepare a child for a new or a possibly stressful experience. For instance, if your little one is nervous about starting school, reading a story dealing with this situation may help ease her anxiety.

Improving concentration and attention. Children may initially fidget or become distracted while you read, but gradually they’ll learn to sit still for the entire book. Developing a longer attention span will benefit your child in the school setting.

Developing stronger relationships. Snuggling up and reading a book can be a nurturing activity that may bring the two of you closer together.

Learning that reading is fun! Reading early and often to your children helps them see that books can be fun and entertaining.

Never underestimate the power you have as a parent to enhance your children’s potential to learn and succeed in school! Below are a two links that will provide suggestions for read-a-louds for any and all ages!

DIY Bookmarks

Supplies Needed

- #10 Envelopes
- Scrap paper or card stock
- Glue Stick
- Assorted Crayons or markers
- Googly Eyes, etc

Beginning at the bottom left corner of the envelope, measure 2 ½ inches up the left-hand side of the envelope. Make a mark with a pencil. From the mark, measure 2 ½ inches to the right. Repeat by drawing 2 ½ inches down to the bottom of the envelope. You will have a 2 ½ inch square drawn on the bottom left corner of the envelope.

Cut out the square, making sure to cut through both layers of the envelope.

Using a ruler, draw a line from the top left corner of the square diagonally to the bottom right corner. Cut along this line, only cutting the top layer of the envelope.

Now the best part—Decorate! Use colored paper, markers, crayons, stickers, etc. to decorate any way you wish! Simply slide on the corner of your book page to mark your spot.
